Professional Skipper,

Rémi was born in 1985, he is French, and until his 18 years old, he passed all his summer in Corsica Island in his family house. He father had a speed boat, and was passionate in free diving, so Rémi was following his dad, and learnt about the sea.

He came in Greece in 2009, to finish his degree in “music and musicology” at the University of Athens. After that, he stayed in Greece and begun to work on the Greek Island with tourist, for Tours operators. But the sea, and the real experience with the nature was missing with the big company of tourism, so he decided to pass the Greek Diploma “Open Seas” and begun to work on sailing boat.

Rémi is a calm and polite person, smiling and enjoying sharing his knowledge of the Greece. He is very concerned of a responsible tourism that respects the environment and the Greek traditions. He loves wild and untouched bays, and small traditional ports. He speaks French as a native language, but also Greek, English and Spanish.
